

Poetry Porch: Poetry

Fugue for a Winter's Day

By Carla Schwartz

For the wind, thread your fingers
through the chimes.

For the sun, heat your soup up on the stove.

For the snow, crush the frozen
with your skis.

For the cardinal, place your flowers
in the window.

For the flowers, feed them water
made of snow.